PROGRAM Today

DATE July 2, 1971 7:00 AM

Washington, D. C.

AN INTERVIEW WITH DR. DANIEL ELLSBERG

HUGH DONNS: In Washington yesterday Attorney General John Mitchell talked about the case of the Pentagon papers and said that the Justice Department will prosecute all those who have violated federal criminal laws in connection with this matter.

And one of those already indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of violating a section of the Espionage Act and for the alleged theft of government property is Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, MIT research associate, who admits he gave the Pentagon papers to the press.

Dr. Ellsberg is at WBZ TV, our Boston affiliate, for an interview now with Today Washington editor, Bill Monroe. Gentlemen.

BILL MONROE: Thank you, Hugh.

Dr. Ellsberg, there was a time lag of about two years from the time you apparently decided to make these papers public and the time they actually became public.

Why that long a lag?

DR. DANIEL ELLSBERG: Well, obviously I don't regret that there was that lag. The actions that I took at that time didn't suffice to get the information neither to the whole of Congress or to the public. And that's why ultimately I had to go further.

MONROE: You gave the papers a couple of years ago apparently to Senator Fulbright. Did you expect him to do more with them than he did?

DR. ELLSBERG: Well, I just hoped that he would. I hoped that there would be hearings. And as a matter of fact there were hearings you may remember scheduled in -- for late October which was the period we're talking about -- late October of '69. These were postponed because of the President's speech of November third, ultimately postponed again and didn't really come back.

I don't know all the reasons that hearings were postponed. I'd always felt that Congressional hearings whether closed or open initially would be the most appropriate forum to address the material in these papers whether the papers themselves were addressed. And I thought that these senators should have these as back-up information for them.

As you know there haven't really been hearings of the sort that were then contemplated up 'til now. And I'm very glad to hear that Senator Mansfield and others, Senator Symington or Senator Jackson, I think, and the Armed Services Committee as well have talked about hearings. I think they're overdue. And I believe this material will be relevant.

- MONROE: Did your wife and children by any chance influence you about making these papers public? Did you talk to them about it?

DR. ELLSBERG: I certainly did not want to involve my wife and children anymore than friends in what obviously could expose them to actions against them -- legal actions against them. I haven't been asked that question before incidentally. I felt the same way about close friends of mine, people that I would have normally turned to for advice on this because I respect their opinion, and yet had to deny them any inkling of what I was doing lest they be suspected of cooperating.

But I did feel, of course, that I owed it to them to give them some general warning that -- since they depended on me -- that problems were going to arise, that I was taking action. They knew that I was acting against the war in various ways. I felt that I had to tell very early my children that some things might be happening to me that would be hard for them to understand. And that -- I wanted them to know why I was doing it.

So, as for my wife. We only got married in August eighth and I had to tell her, of course, before I was married that it could be -- our time together could be short. But I did not want to tell her details of that naturally, not to involve her.

MONROE: I gather from what you said at a news conference

yesterday that you still have some of the papers, that you have not released all of them...

DR. ELLSBERG: That's a misconception of what I said.

I do not have any copy of the papers which I -- as I said I gave only to the Foreign Relations Committee -- since I had no intention of giving them to the newspapers at any time. These are relating to our negotiations and our negotiating channels. I have no need for -- to have them in my possession at any time after I gave them to the Foreign Relations Committee.

MONROE: The certain papers that you regarded as particularly sensitive you've never had in your possession except to give to the Foreign Relations Committee.

DR. ELLSBERG: I really -- one could exaggerate, I think, the sensitivity of those papers which deal with negotiations. But I did feel that a - other judgment was needed on that. Certainly serious judgment could say that that would jeopardize our negotiating channels and that the senators I thought were able to make that judgment than I was for the newspapers.

And, of course, it's implicit in what I've been doing that I felt the senators, the executive branch, the courts, the press, all together probably would bring better judgment to bear on the issue of secrecy than the executive branch had done over 20 years. I felt that their judgment which had been weighted exclusively on the side of secrecy for 25 years had clearly been shown by the studies themselves to have been inadequate.

MONROE: Dr. Ellsberg, I believe Hugh has a question for you from New York.

DOWNS: Yes, a couple of them, Bill.

Dr. Ellsberg, I'm wondering if it's possible that the government was unaware that you were not releasing certain sensitive papers. And that this might in part at least account for the nervousness about what be printed in the newspapers.

DR. ELLSBERG: I really don't know what the government was aware of in this respect. Of course, The New York Times protected not only their right to conceal sources under the First Amendment but their right to hold on to their material and so forth and so I don't know how much the government knew about it. I think they did have a list that should have revealed to them that The New York Times at least did not have that material. I guess there was no way they could know that other papers though would not have it.

DOWNS: The second question is that you have declined to mention who assisted you in the dissemination of this history. But, could you say how many there were? Particularly how many in a position that you were on the inside.

DR. ELLSBERG: No, the -- as a person who worked in the national security system for 12 years I'm not familiar with dealing with the press at all. I read the papers on the way over here this morning and found that I had made a misjudgment by even alluding to the fact that there were other people who made phone calls which was a question raised and did that sort of work when at a time when I was trying to maintain privacy.

I can see right away that that raises the kind of mystery that attracts attention to them which was, of course, not something I wanted to do. The -- just as my own privacy for those ten days which my wife and I enjoyed very much at the same time did give mystery -- attracted attention -- to us and diverted it from the papers where I hoped very much -- the Pentagon papers -- where I hoped it would stay.

So I'm trying to feel my way as to how to keep attention off personalities here. And obviously in this case the only way to do it is just not to comment on the -- the other individuals. Because I said yesterday I don't want to make the decision for them. They're people that I respect and they'll make their own decisions.

MONROE: Dr. Ellsberg, some people feel you've betrayed them in releasing these documents, that you had access to them in the first place because by written pledge or at least by implication you were looked on as trustworthy and had agreed to keep them in confidence. But you broke that trust.

Does that concern you? Did you have to wrestle with that before you made them public?

DR. ELLSBERG: Well, I think the trust that most of those people are talking about are these secrecy regulations of the Department of Defense. And having read the content of these papers I felt -- embarrassed would be too weak a word -- perhaps ashamed seriously, regretful certainly that I had despite my obligations as a citizen been as thoroughly reliable and dependable and loyal to those secrecy regulations as I had been all my career.

Of course, that involved me after all in cooperating and concealing essential information from the American public and something -- I don't want to be melodramatic -- a little beyond that. With all the general questions that are being raised about secrecy I think a rather important one for the future has not been raised that I've faced over the last few years. What should an official or a public servant, salary paid by the president, -- not by the president -- an interesting slip. It shows the reflexes that I absorbed for 12 years along with everybody else. Paid by the people, by the tax-payers, by the people who earn money, by the people who pay taxes of this country who paid my salary my entire professional life.

And a person like me who has sworn an oath to uphold the Constitution with its separation of powers, Congress, independent judiciary and the press as well as the executive branch even though he happens to be immediately employed by the executive branch. What should such a person do when he comes across knowledge and perhaps documentary evidence that officials have not only been concealing vital information from the public but lying to the public, misleading them, concealing evidence not only of mistakes and failures -- and that will always happen -- but in this case and we're talking now about a war -- violations of the Constitution, violations of international agreement, violations of understandings. In effect evidence of high crimes. What should he do with that information?

MONROE: Well, Dr. Ellsberg, people in government including Secretary of State Rogers have made the point that if every employee with access to these papers and -- people have different consciences and different interpretations of these things -- if every employee felt free at any point when he felt material should be made public should make it public the government would have difficulty in negotiations and that sort of thing.

Would you concede that there is some difficulty presented here?

DR. ELLSBERG: Could we separate that into several cases?

First of all with the incentives in the government that they can bring to bear on their employees to keep secrets, to keep silent even about deception and lies and perhaps crime there's no fear that a lot of secrets will be managed to be kept in succeeding years as in the past. Those sanctions are not only loyalty to one's boss and loyalty to the executive branch which people in that branch came to equate with loyalty to the government or the Constitution. It's a distinction that disappears in one's mind when one works in the Pentagon or the State Department or the White House very long.

But there are also incentives of keeping one's job, keeping one's access and influence within the system which would be jeopardized immediately by any fear if you were talking to newspapermen. And by other incentives of various -- so it's the chance of further government employment, further executive branch employment. All these things will press on people to enable them to keep secrets.

The effect of those incentives we can measure by the fact that the enormous mass of secrets -- and secrets is to some extent is a euphemism. Secrets is a magic word that the government has given to facts of our own history which have been deliberately concealed by the public. That gives them this aura of secrets. They're facts, they are lies. They're not quite as mysterious as the word secrets suggests. They've all been kept -- they've been kept so long it seems obvious that the system as it has been functioning has not been -- has been functioning too well when it comes to secrecy.

BILL MONROE: Do you feel fairly certain that the impact of these papers will be to shorten the war, effect current and near future decisions on it?

DR. ELLSBERG: I don't feel certain of anything. I certainly -- certainly that's my hope. I hope that the effects of this disclosure massive as it is and unusual historically in its complexity and comprehensiveness with all its limitations will - that some benefits will flow from -- had if people studied them over a matter of years, not just months.

But certainly my immediate hope is that it will reveal to people how much current policy is reliving the mistakes of the past.

MONROE: Thank you very much, Dr. Ellsberg.

Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, the man who release these secret Pentagon papers.

Durham, N. C.

Dear Sir,

Everybody these days seems to be dreaming up new "rights" and you are no exception. In your editorial of June 22, you proclaim that there is a new right .. "Basic Right People to Know Involved". What basic "right" are you talking about and "to know what" .. everything? Hopwash! You have picked up the "liberal" and "intellectual" jargon.

In your editorial, you quote "U. S. District Judge Murray Gurfein .. another damn "Irishman" .. who says that "freedom of the press" not only involves just the news media, "but also the basic right of the people to know". This is your authority. And you believe him? You also quote him as having said that "there is no greater safety valve for discontent and cynicism about the affairs of government than freedom of expression in ANY FORM". You do not even believe this statement yourself... for anonymous letters are, indeed, included in "any form" .. and you do not publish ANY. But this is but a small objection to your position.

Concerning the release of the secret papers on Vietnam, our government saw fit to classify these papers as SECRET. Our government does not owe you or Mr. Ellsberg an explanation as to WHY these papers are classified as secret... the secrecy stamp has always been respected.. and it should still now be. Of course, seeds of distrust of our government are the number ONE objective here... make no mistake about that. And this fellow Ellsberg" .. another one of those damn "Irishmen" .. like the Goldbergs, .. is still playing a similar game .. and not alone.

Your Judge Gurfein says, further, that if these papers are "secret" because of possible embarrassment, and not national security, AS IF! On ANTI-SEMITISM, government leaders should "learn to live with it". Personally, since brother Ellsberg is so interested in current events, I would have much preferred that he dig up and make public all documents which would shed light on what the Jews are doing and have been doing in attempts to get us out of Vietnam and into Israel (Judah).. including the Rubins, and all similar leftists in this country .. whose names I do not recall, but whose breed I shall never forget... and Ellsberg is just ONE more .. just one more .. and by no means the last. Anti what, did you say? I have said before that I am anti anything that is anti-American, and I do know what I am talking about.

EX-105 REC- 66

Rather than use anymore of my own English, I would like now to attempt to educate you .. just a little.. with two quotations. The first is from Abraham Lincoln. The second, I will not tell you about .. you will have to find out about for yourself.

And if you ever wind out, be sure that you study ALL of the document.

Taken from a book called "The Soul of Lincoln" ..

"Until lately I have been in favor of unlimited liberty for every man, as our Constitution seems to provide.

"But is it not an act of folly to give absolute liberty of conscience to a set of men who are sworn to cut our throats the very day they have the opportunity for doing it?

Is it right to give the privilege of citizenship to men who are sworn enemies of our Constitution, our laws, our liberties, and our very lives?

Is it not an absurdity to give a man a thing which he has sworn to hate, curse and destroy?

" Sooner or later the people of the Republic must put a restriction on the exercise of liberty turned toward the destruction of that from which it came" UNQUOTE.

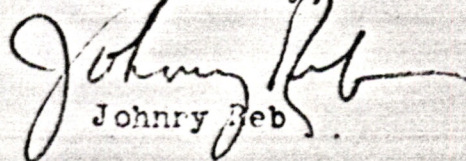

The second quote is this:

"Progress, or rather the idea of progress, has introduced the conception of every kind of emancipation, but has failed to establish its limits... All the so-called liberals are anarchists, if not in fact, at any rate in thought. Every one of them is hunting after phantoms of freedom, and falling exclusively into license, that is, into the anarchy of protest for the sake of protest". Further, "All our newspapers will be of all possible complexions .. aristocratic, republican, revolutionary, even anarchical, for so long, of course, as the constitution exists. ... Those fools who will think they are repeating the opinion of a newspaper of their own camp will be repeating our opinion or any opinion that seems desirable for us".. UNQUOTE.

One thing for certain .. Mr. Ellsberg has arranged for the North Vietnamese to have ALL of this information.. so it will get out one way or another no matter what the court decides .. though it would be ever so much "better" for all such information to come out in our own "free press". But it will "out".

This thief claims to be a "citizen" of the U. S... no great claim these days .. anybody can become one in short order... I would be much more interested in where he was born, who his wife is, where his parents were born, and just who the Hell he thinks he is. If he goes unpunished, and if the press is allowed to print any and every thing which falls into its hands, we had better all take to the streets and fight it out.

Yours truly,

John F. Kennedy

This document contains neither recommendations nor conclusions of the FBI. It is the property of the FBI and is loaned to your agency; it and its contents are not to be distributed outside your agency.

that time didn't suffice to get the information neither to the whole of Congress or to the public. And that's why ultimately I had to go further.

MONROE: You gave the papers a couple of years ago apparently to Senator Fulbright. Did you expect him to do more with them than he did?

DR. ELLSBERG: Well, I just hoped that he would. I hoped that there would be hearings. And as a matter of fact there were hearings you may remember scheduled in -- for late October which was the period we're talking about -- late October of '69. These were postponed because of the President's speech of November third, ultimately postponed again and didn't really come back.

I don't know all the reasons that hearings were postponed. I'd always felt that Congressional hearings whether closed or open initially would be the most appropriate forum to address the material in these papers whether the papers themselves were addressed. And I thought that these senators should have these as back-up information for them.

As you know there haven't really been hearings of the sort that were then contemplated up 'til now. And I'm very glad to hear that Senator Mansfield and others, Senator Symington or Senator Jackson, I think, and the Armed Services Committee as well have talked about hearings. I think they're overdue. And I believe this material will be relevant.

— MONROE: Did your wife and children by any chance influence you about making these papers public? Did you talk to them about it?

DR. ELLSBERG: I certainly did not want to involve my wife and children anymore than friends in what obviously could expose them to actions against them -- legal actions against them. I haven't been asked that question before incidentally. I felt the same way about close friends of mine, people that I would have normally turned to for advice on this because I respect their opinion, and yet had to deny them any inkling of what I was doing lest they be suspected of cooperating.

But I did feel, of course, that I owed it to them to give them some general warning that -- since they depended on me -- that problems were going to arise, that I was taking action. They knew that I was acting against the war in various ways. I felt that I had to tell very early my children that some things might be happening to me that would be hard for them to understand. And that -- I wanted them to know why I was doing it.

So, as for my wife. We only got married in August eighth and I had to tell her, of course, before I was married that it could be -- our time together could be short. But I did not want to tell her details of that naturally, not to involve her.

MONROE: I gather from what you said at a news conference yesterday that you still have some of the papers, that you have not released all of them...

DR. ELLSBERG: That's a misconception of what I said.

I do not have any copy of the papers which I -- as I said I gave only to the Foreign Relations Committee -- since I had no intention of giving them to the newspapers at any time. These are relating to our negotiations and our negotiating channels. I have no need for -- to have them in my possession at any time after I gave them to the Foreign Relations Committee.

MONROE: The certain papers that you regarded as particularly sensitive you've never had in your possession except to give to the Foreign Relations Committee.

DR. ELLSBERG: I really -- one could exaggerate, I think, the sensitivity of those papers which deal with negotiations. But I did feel that a - other judgment was needed on that. Certainly serious judgment could say that that would jeopardize our negotiating channels and that the senators I thought were able to make that judgment than I was for the newspapers.

And, of course, it's implicit in what I've been doing that I felt the senators, the executive branch, the courts, the press, all together probably would bring better judgment to bear on the issue of secrecy than the executive branch had done over 20 years. I felt that their judgment which had been weighted exclusively on the side of secrecy for 25 years had clearly been shown by the studies themselves to have been inadequate.

MONROE: Dr. Ellsberg, I believe Hugh has a question for you from New York.

DOWNS: Yes, a couple of them, Bill.

Dr. Ellsberg, I'm wondering if it's possible that the government was unaware that you were not releasing certain sensitive papers. And that this might in part at least account for the nervousness about what be printed in the newspapers.

DR. ELLSBERG: I really don't know what the government was aware of in this respect. Of course, The New York Times protected not only their right to conceal sources under the First Amendment but their right to hold on to their material and so forth and so I don't know how much the government knew about it. I think they did have a list that should have revealed to them that The New York Times at least did not have that material. I guess there was no way they could know that other papers though would not have it.

DOWNS: The second question is that you have declined to mention who assisted you in the dissemination of this history. But, could you say how many there were? Particularly how many in a position that you were on the inside.

DR. ELLSBERG: No, the -- as a person who worked in the national security system for 12 years I'm not familiar with dealing with the press at all. I read the papers on the way over here this morning and found that I had made a misjudgment

by even alluding to the fact that there were other people who made phone calls which was a question raised and did that sort of work when at a time when I was trying to maintain privacy.

I can see right away that that raises the kind of mystery that attracts attention to them which was, of course, not something I wanted to do. The -- just as my own privacy for those ten days which my wife and I enjoyed very much at the same time did give mystery -- attracted attention -- to us and diverted it from the papers where I hoped very much -- the Pentagon papers -- where I hoped it would stay.

So I'm trying to feel my way as to how to keep attention off personalities here. And obviously in this case the only way to do it is just not to comment on the -- the other individuals. Because I said yesterday I don't want to make the decision for them. They're people that I respect and they'll make their own decisions.

MONROE: Dr. Ellsberg, some people feel you've betrayed them in releasing these documents, that you had access to them in the first place because by written pledge or at least by implication you were looked on as trustworthy and had agreed to keep them in confidence. But you broke that trust.

Does that concern you? Did you have to wrestle with that before you made them public?

DR. ELLSBERG: Well, I think the trust that most of those people are talking about are these secrecy regulations of the Department of Defense. And having read the content of these papers I felt -- embarrassed would be too weak a word -- perhaps ashamed seriously, regretful certainly that I had despite my obligations as a citizen been as thoroughly reliable and dependable and loyal to those secrecy regulations as I had been all my career.

Of course, that involved me after all in cooperating and concealing essential information from the American public and something -- I don't want to be melodramatic -- a little beyond that. With all the general questions that are being raised about secrecy I think a rather important one for the future has not been raised that I've faced over the last few years. What should an official or a public servant, salary paid by the president, -- not by the president -- an interesting slip. It shows the reflexes that I absorbed for 12 years along with everybody else. Paid by the people, by the tax-payers, by the people who earn money, by the people who pay taxes of this country who paid my salary my entire professional life.

And a person like me who has sworn an oath to uphold the Constitution with its separation of powers, Congress, independent judiciary and the press as well as the executive branch even though he happens to be immediately employed by the executive branch. What should such a person do when he comes across knowledge and perhaps documentary evidence that officials have not only been concealing vital information from the public but lying to the public, misleading them, concealing evidence not only of mistakes and failures -- and that will always happen -- but in this case and we're talking now about a war -- violations of the Constitution, violations of international agreement, violations of understandings. In effect evidence of high crimes. What should he do with that information?

MONROE: Well, Dr. Ellsberg, people in government including Secretary of State Rogers have made the point that if every employee with access to these papers and -- people have different consciences and different interpretations of these things -- if every employee felt free at any point when he felt material should be made public should make it public the government would have difficulty in negotiations and that sort of thing.

Would you concede that there is some difficulty presented here?

DR. ELLSBERG: Could we separate that into several cases?

First of all with the incentives in the government that they can bring to bear on their employees to keep secrets, to keep silent even about deception and lies and perhaps crime there's no fear that a lot of secrets will be managed to be kept in succeeding years as in the past. Those sanctions are not only loyalty to one's boss and loyalty to the executive branch which people in that branch came to equate with loyalty to the government or the Constitution. It's a distinction that disappears in one's mind when one works in the Pentagon or the State Department or the White House very long.

But there are also incentives of keeping one's job, keeping one's access and influence within the system which would be jeopardized immediately by any fear if you were talking to newspapermen. And by other incentives of various -- so it's the chance of further government employment, further executive branch employment. All these things will press on people to enable them to keep secrets.

The effect of those incentives we can measure by the fact that the enormous mass of secrets -- and secrets is to some extent is a euphemism. Secrets is a magic word that the government has given to facts of our own history which have been deliberately concealed by the public. That gives them this aura of secrets. They're facts, they are lies. They're not quite as mysterious as the word secrets suggests. They've all been kept -- they've been kept so long it seems obvious that the system as it has been functioning has not been -- has been functioning too well when it comes to secrecy.

BILL MONROE: Do you feel fairly certain that the impact of these papers will be to shorten the war, effect current and near future decisions on it?

DR. ELLSBERG: I don't feel certain of anything. I certainly -- certainly that's my hope. I hope that the effects of this disclosure massive as it is and unusual historically in its complexity and comprehensiveness with all its limitations will - that some benefits will flow from -- had if people studied them over a matter of years, not just months.

But certainly my immediate hope is that it will reveal to people how much current policy is reliving the mistakes of the past.

MONROE: Thank you very much, Dr. Ellsberg.

Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, the man who release these secret Pentagon papers.

Recommend teletype/ to logical offices instructing them to be alert for any information through press releases or other sources indicating Daniel Ellsberg intends to make a public appearance and, upon receipt of such information, necessary arrangements be made to record Ellsberg's comments.

Prior to and subsequent to Daniel Ellsberg's indictment, 6/28/71 by Federal Grand Jury, Los Angeles, California, relative to his involvement in the leak of classified information to "The New York Times," Ellsberg has made appearances before the public through press conferences and television media. During these appearances he has, on occasion, made statements which of themselves have been evidentiary in nature relative to the charges against him. He has also made statements which undoubtedly would be of value to the Departmental attorneys in connection with any cross-examination of him at such time as this matter goes to court.

We have already, on two occasions, monitored Ellsberg's public appearances and both have resulted in the obtaining of valuable information

Departmental attorney Paul Vincent, who is handling Federal Grand Jury, Boston, regarding this case, has requested Bureau's cooperation in recording future public appearances of Ellsberg. In view of Department's request, as well as fact prior experience has indicated such action could be valuable to this investigation, recommend teletype to pertinent offices instructing them to record Ellsberg's comments when making public appearances.

To summarize for information data received over the weekend from principal offices involved in the investigation of the leak of classified information to "The New York Times."

Continuing investigation at Los Angeles has revealed the identities and possible whereabouts of women believed to have been involved in affairs with Daniel Ellsberg either during his tour of duty in Vietnam or during his period of assignment with the Rand Corporation in Santa Monica, California. These included one Frances Fitzgerald, daughter of a deceased Central Intelligence Agency official, who met Ellsberg in Vietnam and was an acquaintance of Ellsberg's present wife. Also included is one Susan Bellow, the divorced wife of the author Saul Bellow. Susan Bellow is believed to currently reside in Chicago. Investigation continues to locate these women for interview purposes.

Also identified as a former acquaintance of Ellsberg was James Schlesinger, Assistant Director of the Budget. Arrangements are being made to interview Schlesinger at once for any information of value.

A detailed outline was received from Boston Office of all information obtained to date regarding the apartments of Spencer B. Marx, 4 Trowbridge Place, Cambridge, Massachusetts, revealed by investigation as having figured in contacts by Neil and Susan Sheehan when those employees of "The New York Times" copied classified documents in this matter in Cambridge on 3/21-23/71. Spencer Marx is the son of the prominent toy manufacturer, Louis Marx, and is the brother of Patricia Marx, the wife of the subject in this matter.

The data uncovered shows that Spencer Marx may have been less than candid with Bureau Agents when interviewed at his present residence in Big Sur, California, 6/29/71. At that time, he disclaimed having been in his apartment since February, 1971, claimed that he had the only key to his apartment in Cambridge, and professed having given no one permission to enter and use his apartment. Spencer Marx being considered by Department of Justice for Federal Grand Jury appearance.

Maintenance employees at apartment and interview with personnel of burglar alarm service covering the apartment show that virtually all of Marx's relatives have keys to the apartment, including Mrs. Daniel Ellsberg. Mrs. Louis Marx was known to have briefly occupied the apartment on 5/6/71 when visiting Boston on the occasion of an antiwar protest which endeavored to blockade the John F. Kennedy Building in that city. Ellsberg himself was prominent in this demonstration and made a public statement strongly supporting the action of that date. Ellsberg's wife has frequently contacted personnel at the apartment and employees of the burglar alarm company to make arrangements for entry into the apartment for purposes of cleaning and maintenance. About two or three weeks ago, she had a typewriter delivered to the apartment by a local cab driver and two days before Ellsberg was publicly accused of involvement in instant matter his wife had arranged with a charwoman to have the apartment aired out and properly air conditioned.

ACTION:

None. Investigation continues to receive intensive investigative attention and you will be advised of pertinent developments.

Pertinent portions of data synopsis herein will be included in a weekly memorandum for the White House and will be furnished to the Attorney General, as well as to the Assistant Attorney General - Internal Security Division.

Enclosed is a memorandum of this Bureau dated July 13, 1971, which sets forth pertinent developments in our continuing investigation into matters related to the publication by "The New York Times" of the so-called "McNamara Study." The information relates to the convening of a Federal Grand Jury in Boston on July 7, 1971; indications that Daniel Ellsberg may have been in the Boston area during March, 1971, at the time Neil Sheehan of "The New York Times" and his wife were engaged in the duplicating of documents; verification of the renting of a suite of rooms in the Hilton Hotel, New York City, by "The New York Times"; and the apparent duplication of a document by representatives of "The Washington Post."

This information is also being furnished to the Honorable H. R. Haldeman at the White House.

ReBSrep of SA [REDACTED] dated 7/1/71,
captioned "Daniel Ellsberg, Espionage - X."

Bureau concurs with Boston's observation that a most pertinent question relative to investigation of subject is the present location of the original Xerox copies of classified data made by Ellsberg, et al., apparently in California about October, 1969, and further, that these documents could be located at Ellsberg's residence or various other places which Ellsberg has had access to. As you are aware, in order to obtain a search warrant, information must be available to establish probable cause that the evidence sought and which is intended to be seized is, in fact, located at the place for which the search warrant is issued. A search warrant cannot be obtained based merely on the possibility or supposition due to circumstances that the evidence is located at a given place.

Accordingly, under the circumstances, Bureau does not feel sufficient information has been developed to date to establish the necessary probable cause, and accordingly, no action is being taken by the Bureau with the Department at this time in an effort to acquire a search warrant as requested in referenced report. Should such information be forthcoming and you feel sufficient evidence is available, resubmit your request.

1 - Los Angeles

JRW:bjp

NOTE:

Boston requested the Bureau consult with the Department concerning the possibility of obtaining a search warrant for the logical places where Ellsberg could have stored the original copies of the classified information involved in this matter.

Enclosed is a memorandum setting forth information regarding the subject and his alleged association with Vu Van Thai, a Vietnamese national currently employed by the United Nations in Dakar, Senegal.

In view of the information which has been developed indicating Vu Van Thai may be identical with a Vietnamese who reportedly has knowledge of and personally participated in the duplication of classified documents by Ellsberg, it is requested that a representative of the Office of Security, Department of State, interview Vu as outlined in the enclosed memorandum.

Inasmuch as this investigation involves possible violations of the Espionage Statute, it is requested that the interview of Vu be undertaken as soon as possible and the results furnished this Bureau expeditiously.

DANIEL ELLSBERG
ESPIONAGE - X

Daniel Ellsberg, Senior Research Associate, Center for International Studies, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Massachusetts, was indicted on June 28, 1971, by Federal Grand Jury, Los Angeles, California, charging him with violation of the Espionage Statute. This indictment arose out of current investigation being conducted into the leak of classified data to "The New York Times."

In connection with this investigation, it has been determined that on approximately seven occasions within a two-week period between July 19, 1969, and January 19, 1970, Daniel Ellsberg, together with other individuals, utilized Xerox equipment at a firm operated by Lynda Sinay in Los Angeles, California, to reproduce classified documents. On one or more of the occasions the other individuals who were present and reportedly assisted in some fashion in the duplicating were Lynda Sinay; Ellsberg's two children, Robert and Mary; Anthony Russo, a friend of Ellsberg and former employee of the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California; an unidentified female named Kimberly who may be identical with Judith Kimberly Rosenberg, who also uses last names Monroy, Hiney, and DeRamieres, currently residing in Canada; and a Vietnamese who is believed to be identical with Vu Van Thai, a former associate and fellow employee of Ellsberg at the Rand Corporation in California.

MAIL ROOM ☐

It is requested that Vu be thoroughly interviewed with regard to his association with Ellsberg and specifically concerning his knowledge of and personal participation in the duplication of classified documents. He should be questioned relative to the identification of any of the classified documents involved and whether or not at the time the documents were duplicated they bore classification markings.

For your information, data has been developed that subsequent to the duplication of the classified documents the classification markings were cut off of the copies at the office where the duplication was made, allegedly in the presence of Vu.

Individuals who were present at the time of the duplicating when Vu was there should be specifically identified and the number of occasions that Vu participated in or had knowledge of duplicating should be ascertained. Any information he can supply relative to what Ellsberg did with the original classified documents and/or the copies made should be determined.

If possible, information supplied by Vu should be reduced to a signed statement. Vu should also be questioned as to whether or not he would be willing to testify in United States Federal Court regarding the information he furnishes. Should Vu prove to be fully cooperative, you should explore with him his personal appraisal of Ellsberg's attitude regarding such pertinent subjects as the latter's views regarding the war in Vietnam, with particular attention being afforded Vu's opinion as to the approximate date Ellsberg's stand in this matter changed from that of a "hawk" to a "dove." Also appreciated along this line would be Vu's comments as to any contributing influence affecting Ellsberg's stand on this matter.

ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE

Reference is made to your letter dated July 2, 1971, requesting electronic surveillance information regarding Daniel Ellsberg, who was recently indicted for violation of the espionage statute.

A review of our records reveals that no conversations of Daniel Ellsberg have been monitored by electronic surveillance devices nor has he been the subject of direct electronic coverage.

NOTE:

In view of Daniel Ellsberg's indictment, the Department advised that it anticipates that Ellsberg's defense counsel will file a motion to produce all evidence obtained by electronic surveillance. Accordingly, the Department requested that it be determined whether any conversations of Ellsberg had been monitored by electronic surveillance devices and if so, certain information regarding conversations which were monitored, identification of the telephone surveillances involved and letters of authority and reauthorization regarding the telephone surveillances. The special indices of the Bureau have been checked as well as prior places of residence or known areas where Ellsberg has been, including Los Angeles, Boston, New York, WFO, Chicago, Denver, and San Francisco.

Daniel Ellsberg was reported to have reproduced documents of classified nature in October, 1969, in presence of a "Vietnamese." We feel that Vu Van Thai is the individual in question but note that Van Chi Hoang was also a subordinate of Ellsberg when both were employed at Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California. Van Chi is reported to be strongly anticommunist and views he has expressed in past could be in conflict with stance of Ellsberg and Vu Van. He may be able to add information of pertinence to data we have already accumulated.

To summarize, for information, data received during the night in our continuing investigation of the leak of classified data to "The New York Times."

Federal Grand Jury was convened in Boston on 7/7/71 to hear evidence as to possible violations of Espionage Act by news media personnel. [redacted] witnesses testified, all of whom had previously been interviewed by Bureau Agents and no apparent discrepancies were noted by Departmental Attorney in their testimony. [redacted]

EX-105 REC-11

It will be recalled information appeared in the press to the effect that prior to "The New York Times" release of material based on "McNamara Study" on 6/13/71, arrangements were made for staff writers of "The New York Times" to work with Neil Sheehan in the preparation of material for publication. They were reported to have worked secretly in a suite at the Hilton Hotel, New York City. On 7/7/71 [redacted] revealed that on 4/21/71 Peter Millones, Assistant to the Managing Editor of "The New York Times," made a reservation for the following day for a three-room suite. Suite occupied 4/22/71 by Gerald Gold of "The New York Times" and during period 4/27/71 to 6/11/71 additional rooms were rented, making a total of ten. On 6/17/71 Gold notified the hotel he no longer needed four of the ten rooms. As of 7/1/71 Gold occupied a single room. Food and laundry charges indicate Fox Butterfield, E. W. Kenworthy and Hedrick Smith, all of whom have previously been identified as employees of "The New York Times," resided in the suite of rooms.

No information was developed through [redacted] that Daniel Ellsberg resided at the hotel. Bills for the rooms were sent to "The New York Times" and estimated total charges to date are $25,000.

Memorandum to Mr. C. D. Brennan

It will be recalled that Neil Sheehan and his wife have been identified as reproducing documents during March, 1971, believed to have been utilized in disclosure of classified information by "The New York Times." On one occasion a cab driver took Neil Sheehan from the company where the documents were copied to an address in Cambridge, Massachusetts, later determined to be an apartment house where Spencer Marx, half brother of Ellsberg's wife, has an apartment. Spencer Marx, son of Louis Marx, was, with the Director's prior approval, interviewed in California 6/29/71 and stated his apartment had been vacant since 11/70 and to his knowledge had not been utilized by anyone and that he had the only key. The apartment has a burglar alarm system and a representative of the burglar alarm company has advised that Ellsberg's wife has a key. On 7/7/71 the maintenance man at the apartment house advised that on 3/11/71 or 3/12/71 he was personally asked by Spencer Marx to make periodic checks of apartment. On 3/14/71 he was telephonically contacted by Mrs. Louis Marx, mother of Spencer Marx from New York City to hold in abeyance the request made by Spencer Marx. He stated that he had not been subsequently contacted by any of the Marx family.

In connection with our investigation of the Peoples Coalition for Peace and Justice, self-described in a press release 3/1/71 as being headquartered in Washington, D. C., and consisting of over 100 organizations which are using massive, nonviolent civil disobedience to combat racism, poverty, repression and war,

[REDACTED]

A review of these deposits has disclosed that on 5/3/71 a deposit was made to this account based on a wire transfer from the National Shawmut Bank, Boston, Massachusetts, by Patricia Ellsberg. Checks will be made at the National Shawmut Bank in an effort to determine if this person is identical with Ellsberg's wife.

[REDACTED] have been reviewed and verification has been made of a trip from Washington, D. C., to San Francisco, California, on 5/13/71 by Daniel Ellsberg and Congressman Paul N. McCloskey. It will be recalled when McCloskey was interviewed by Bureau Agents he admitted traveling to the West Coast with Ellsberg, but could not recall the specific date.

It will be recalled that in about October, 1969, Ellsberg, together with other individuals, one of whom was described as a Vietnamese, duplicated classified information in the office of Lynda Sinay. On 7/7/71 Jan Steers, owner and operator of the Indonesian Restaurant, Santa Monica, California, advised that Daniel Ellsberg frequented this restaurant while employed at the Rand Corporation. He recalled Ellsberg was accompanied on several occasions at the restaurant by a South Vietnamese. He identified a photograph of Vu Van Thai who is currently employed by the United Nations assigned to Dakar, Senegal as being identical with the South Vietnamese who was with Ellsberg at the restaurant.

ACTION:

None. For information. Case continues to receive intensive investigative attention and you will be advised of pertinent developments.

Pertinent information herein will be included in weekly summary to White House and furnished to the Internal Security Division of the Department.

Pursuant to the Director's authorization on attached memorandum 7/5/71, Messrs. C. D. Brennan, J. R. Wagoner and W. R. Wannall of Domestic Intelligence Division and Mr. J. B. Hotis of Mr. Dalbey's office met with Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian and members of his staff on afternoon of 7/6/71 to discuss Department's immediate and long-range plans for legal proceedings against all individuals involved in the leak of classified "McNamara Study" to "The New York Times" and other newspapers. Present were Departmental attorneys Robert McAuliffe, William Olsen, John Martin, John Davitt and Kevin Maroney, each of whom headed a phase of the Departmental team working on this case, and James McGrath, case coordinator.

At the outset, Mardian referred to the recent grand jury in Los Angeles, which looked into the unauthorized possession of copies of some of the "McNamara Study" papers by principal subject Daniel Ellsberg and said legal proceedings in Los Angeles are exhausted for now but would probably be taken up there at a later date. It is his feeling the principal violation occurred in that area.

With respect to the grand jury convening 7/7/71 in Boston, Mardian said it is an investigative-type grand jury and evidence will be presented concerning violations on the part of any individuals involved in the acquisition and publication of the "McNamara Study" material. In this regard, he said there will be a "no holds barred" investigation and Mardian has been advised by the Attorney General he is free to go wherever the evidence leads with the proviso that the Attorney General gets regular summaries on developments. He said the Attorney General has ordered that no news media personnel be presently interviewed or brought before this Federal grand jury without his specific prior approval; however, Mardian expects in the immediate future he will secure the Attorney General's approval for the appearances of Neil Sheehan, "The New York Times" staff writer whose by-line appeared on the stories on the "McNamara Study," and Sheehan's wife, Susan.

Memorandum for Mr. Brennan

Mardian further said that as the case is developed before the grand jury we will certainly come to the point where interviews of other news media personnel and/or their appearances before the grand jury under subpoena will not only be desirable but necessary. At this point he will secure authorization from the Attorney General to go ahead. Initially, he is issuing subpoenas to witnesses, all of whom have been previously interviewed by our Agents in Boston. Our interviews with these prospective witnesses to date have established the duplication of documents in large quantities by Neil Sheehan and his wife, Susan.

We raised with Mardian and his staff certain problems which were inherent in Mardian's letter dated 7/3/71, discussed in attached memorandum, and these problems were resolved. For example, Mardian's letter requested the obtaining of originals of certain traveler's checks for signature comparison purposes and we had previously furnished the Department the name of the bank official on whom a subpoena must be served to arrange for these originals. At Mardian's instructions, attorney John Davitt arranged for the Boston grand jury to issue the necessary subpoena tomorrow and it will be served by our New York Office to get the original material.

In his letter of 7/3/71 Mardian also inquired about the connections between one Kitty Margulies and Susan Sheehan. At the conference we pointed out that we had previously advised the Department that Margulies is the mother of Susan. Mardian stated there was no objection to an interview with Kitty Margulies. New York Office has been advised that prior to such an interview Bureau authority should be secured, and a memorandum will be prepared at that time for the Director's specific approval.

Certain of the items outlined as investigative possibilities in Mardian's letter of 7/3/71 related to development of extensive background on Daniel Ellsberg. Mardian explained that information coming to his attention from Department of Defense and State Department officials indicated that a group at each of these Departments may be involved in a ring to pass out classified information. While this may or may not be related to the Ellsberg case, he is most desirous of getting a complete rundown on Ellsberg's background to determine if any of his associates may have come under suspicion in connection with other leaks. He also said the President is vitally concerned not only with the Ellsberg case but with all aspects of leaks of classified information of the Executive Branch. In this regard,

Memorandum for Mr. Brennan
Re: MCLEK

J. Fred Buzhardt, Department of Defense, General Counsel, on 7/2/71 recorded information (transcript attached) dealing with this over-all subject of leaks. Mardian asked that we review this attachment and institute such inquiries as we feel are appropriate to check into this matter. We have arranged to get a copy of the Department of Defense file covering this matter and it will be immediately reviewed, and our separate recommendations submitted as to what action Bureau should take.

Expedite. H

Mardian pointed out there are two developments in this case which make him feel there may be Communist Party connections on the part of Ellsberg. The first is the fact that Ellsberg appeared as an expert witness for the defense on 1/14/71 in the trial of the so-called "Minneapolis Eight," who were convicted on charges emanating from their roles in the raids of Minnesota draft boards. In his testimony, Ellsberg condoned such raids as a necessary means of causing the Government to change its policy with respect to Vietnam. The defense attorney was Kenneth Earl Tilsen, who has had a record of Communist Party connections as far back as 1946. Mardian wonders why Tilsen called Ellsberg as an expert witness, if he in fact was the one who did so. The other suspicious factor is that Ellsberg's attorney, Louis Boudin, has had strong communist connections for years. It was with these thoughts in mind that Mardian asked for an extensive investigation into Ellsberg's background, associates, and possible connections in either the communist field or the New Left field. As noted in attached memorandum, these leads were referred to the field for expeditious handling over the past weekend.

In summation, Mardian stated that he considers this case to be of primary importance to the Government and that the Attorney General ordered that it be pursued to the point where prosecution is entered against all guilty parties, whether they are news media personnel or not, and in such a fashion that it will be placed in its proper prospective as a criminal issue and not a political issue.

ACTION:

Investigation we have ordered to date is directed along channels which will support Departmental needs for evidence to establish the criminal violations in this case. We will continue pursuing all such leads most diligently and keep the Director apprised of significant developments as they occur.

Memorandum, W.R. Wannall to C.D. Brennan 6/24/71 in our case involving the leak of classified "McNamara Study" to "The New York Times" and other papers by Daniel Ellsberg, who is now connected with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, sought and secured the Director's approval for discussion by representatives of Domestic Intelligence Division (DID) and Mr. Dalbey's Office with Departmental attorneys concerning issuance of subpoenas to secure toll call records regarding individuals who are or may be subjects in this investigation. When efforts were made to set up this meeting, Departmental attorneys asked that it be deferred until critical first stages of the case relating to injunction proceedings against various newspapers had been resolved. On 7/4/71, attached letter dated 7/3/71 from Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division, was received in which the Department outlined various investigative aspects it desires covered in connection with Grand Jury which will convene 7/7/71 in Boston to hear evidence as to possible violations of Espionage Act by news media personnel. The Bureau has already covered or has leads outstanding covering most of these aspects. The letter presents certain problems which should be resolved at once through a meeting with Departmental attorneys, as was previously approved.

The Department's letter of 7/3/71, for example, requests in item 12 that original copies of certain traveler's checks used by "The New York Times" reporter, Neil Sheehan, and his wife, be obtained for comparison of signatures. We have already compared signatures from copies of the original checks and have previously given to the Department the name of a bank official on whom a subpoena must be served to secure the originals. Again, in item 11, the Department inquires regarding any possible connection between Kitty Margulies and Neil Sheehan's wife, Susan. We have already told the Department that Kitty Margulies is the mother of Susan Sheehan, and have conducted extensive inquiries in this connection. In item 18, the Department inquires about interviews with five individuals who, with Daniel Ellsberg, submitted a letter which appeared in "The Washington Post." We have interviewed three of these individuals and are making extensive efforts to locate and interview the other two, and the Department has been so advised in the past.

Because of the aforementioned injunction proceedings by the Department against the newspapers, we have conducted only most discreet investigation relating to news media personnel to avoid action which might jeopardize the outcome of this case which was ultimately disposed of by the Supreme Court last week. On Friday, 7/2/71, we sent through, with a memorandum, a proposed letter to the Attorney General advising him that we were prepared to proceed with interviews of all news media personnel as the next logical step of our investigation in this case and asked the Attorney General to advise whether such interviews would conflict with any legal action planned by the Department. In the attached letter of 7/3/71, the Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division, has advised there should be no direct contacts with any reporters or newspaper personnel "including Neil Sheehan and his wife, potential defendants in this case." We should determine identities of other potential defendants among news media personnel since interviews with those who are not potential defendants at this time could help sew up our case against those who are.

Over the past weekend, we have carefully reviewed the attached letter and set out leads based on requests therein which are designed to develop a case against news media representatives in those instances where leads were not already outstanding. We will pursue these and all other leads vigorously and furnish results to the Department here in Washington, D.C., as well as to Departmental representative who is in Boston before the Grand Jury convening there 7/7/71.

This case has far reaching ramifications involving the right of the Executive Branch to classify and protect its most vital secrets. The outcome, without question, will affect the operations of the Executive Branch in the future. We feel its importance is such that we should sit down with Departmental attorneys to get a clear picture of Departmental aims, both direct and long-range, in order that our immediate investigation may be directed along channels which will be most beneficial in the presentation of the case.

ACTION:

If the Director approves, representatives of DID and of Mr. Dalbey's Office will meet with appropriate Departmental attorneys on 7/6/71 to discuss the Department's immediate and long-range plans and thus permit us to direct our investigative efforts along those channels which offer chances for more productive results.

Dear Mr. Haldeman:

Reference is made to my letter dated July 6, 1971.

Enclosed is a memorandum of this Bureau dated July 13, 1971, which sets forth pertinent developments since the referenced letter in our continuing investigation into matters related to the publication by "The New York Times" of the so-called "McNamara Study." ESPIONAGE - X

The following are the pertinent developments since July 6, 1971, in our continuing investigation into matters related to the publication by "The New York Times" of the so-called "McNamara Study" which dealt with United States - Vietnam relations during the period 1945 - 1967.

A Federal Grand Jury was convened at Boston, Massachusetts, on July 7, 1971, to hear evidence as to possible violations of the Espionage Statute by news media personnel. The Grand Jury heard witnesses through July 9, 1971, and it is anticipated the next session of the Grand Jury will be on July 13 or 14, 1971.

Prior investigation revealed that Cornelius M. Sheehan, usually referred to as Neil Sheehan, who is a reporter for "The New York Times," and his wife, Susan M. Sheehan, arranged and participated in the copying of what appeared to be Xerox copies of some of the classified material appearing in the "McNamara Study" at two separate duplicating firms in Massachusetts, one located in Bedford and the other in Boston. This duplicating was done during the period March 21 through March 23, 1971. In our effort to pin down the movements of the Sheehans during this period we have developed information showing travel by taxi between one of the duplicating firms and the apartment in Cambridge, Massachusetts, of Daniel Ellsberg's brother-in-law, Spencer B. Marx. We have also learned that during the same period unknown individuals traveled between the Marx apartment and the residence of Daniel Ellsberg in Cambridge. Investigation is continuing to fully identify the passengers of these taxi trips.

Information has appeared in the press to the effect that prior to "The New York Times" release of articles based on the "McNamara Study" on June 13, 1971, arrangements were made for staff writers of "The New York Times" to work in secrecy in the preparation of material for publication. They were reported to have worked in a suite at the Hilton Hotel in New York City. [REDACTED] reveal that on April 21, 1971, Peter Millones, Assistant to the Managing Editor of "The New York Times," made a reservation for the following day for a three-room suite. The suite was occupied on April 22, 1971, by Gerald Gold of "The New York Times" and during the period of April 7, 1971, to June 11, 1971, additional rooms were rented, making a total of ten. On June 17, 1971, Gold notified the hotel he no longer needed four of the ten rooms and he thereafter released others. As of July 1, 1971, Gold occupied a single room. [REDACTED] food and laundry charges indicate Fox Butterfield, E. W. Kenworthy and Hedrick Smith, all of whom are employees of "The New York Times," resided in the suite of rooms. No information was developed through a review of hotel records indicating that Daniel Ellsberg resided at the hotel during this period of time. Bills for the rooms were sent to "The New York Times" and the estimated charges to July 7, 1971, were $25,000.

On June 30, 1971, a confidential source, [REDACTED] is in a position to have knowledge of the information he furnished, advised as follows:

At approximately 12:30 a. m., on June 30, 1971, Jack Anderson, news columnist of "The Washington Post," accompanied by four other individuals, went to the office of "The Washington Post" on 15th Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C., apparently for the purpose of copying a document which appeared to be an original and consisted of several typewritten pages. Anderson instructed the individual who was handling the duplicating to be sure that only seven copies were made of each page. While this was being done, an unknown male entered the office and inquired as to when the copies would be ready. This individual advised that "representatives of the 'Washington Star,' 'Boston News,' and 'Miami News' were waiting and that the 'Miami News' was willing to pay any price for the document."

According to the source, the Xerox copies were completed at approximately 3 a. m., at which time Anderson and his companions departed the office. Five discarded pages of the document were obtained by the source. These five Xerox copies have been compared by the National Security Agency with the various classified documents believed to be involved in the recent unauthorized disclosure of classified information to "The New York Times" by Daniel Ellsberg. The National Security Agency reported on July 9, 1971, that a preliminary study shows the five discarded pages contain information from a volume of an eighteen-volume draft of the "McNamara Study." This specific volume is classified "Top Secret - Sensitive." Prior investigation has shown that Daniel Ellsberg had access to this eighteen-volume draft of the "McNamara Study."

The June 28, 1971, issue of "Newsweek" magazine carried an article captioned "The Suspect: A Hawk Who Turned Dove." This article concerned Daniel Ellsberg and alleged that in January, 1971, Ellsberg approached John D. Holum, a legislative assistant to Senator George S. McGovern, offering to show him some classified documents. Holum was quoted as saying, "He said he would make them public even if it meant he had to go to jail." According to the article, on the advice of Holum, Senator McGovern turned down the offer. We are proceeding with an interview of Holum and will report the results.

This matter continues to receive continuous investigative attention and you will be advised of pertinent investigative developments.
